UNPLEDGED DELEGATES WON

Presidential Primary Draws Out Small Vote. Roosevelt Delegates Defeated by Nearly Three to One. Small Democratic Vote.

The Presidential Primaries which were held in Massachusetts on Tuesday resulted in a big victory for the delegates who will go to Chicago unpledged to any candidate for the nomination of President of the United States. The result seems to be more than could have been expected by the unpledged faction as the pro-Roosevelt leaders of the Republican party had put up an aggressive campaign headed by Charles Sumner Bird and Congressman Augustus Peabody Gardner. The result of the strenuous campaigning as shown by the voters on Tuesday was four district delegates against thirty-two, and none of the Roosevelt delegates at large will go to the convention, the unpledged candidates winning all four places.

The delegates at large elected were Governor McCall, Henry Cabot Lodge, John W. Weeks, and Winthrop Murray Crane. These men received a fine endorsement all over the State and led the pledged delegates by about 15,000 votes.

In Andover the voters came out in moderate numbers, only 472 ballots being cast. Of these, 459 were divided between the two Republican factions and only thirteen straight Democratic votes were recorded. The unpledged district delegates won a handsome victory over the pledged by nearly three votes to one. Hon. John N. Cole led this group with 310 votes and his running mate, Herbert

BOSTON THEATRES

ORPHEUM

Loew's Orpheum Theatre is proving to be the most popular theatre in Boston, and justly so when it is considered that it possesses so many advantages and offers such advantageous bills of entertainment. Situated in the heart of the shopping district it is inviting of access to the tired shopper, and the fact that the show is continuous from 10 a.m. until 10.30 p.m. means that one can go in at any time of day and stay through an entire show. The Orpheum Theatre Symphony Orchestra is the largest and only complete orchestra in any vaudeville theatre in New England, and is under the direction of the well known leader, Carl Hand. When playing in conjunction with the huge pipe organ there is available the most perfect musical combination imaginable. In addition to eight acts of high-class vaudeville there is also given the first showing of Bluebird Photoplays for the first half of the week.

PARK SQUARE

Every learned critic of the press in Boston writing of the opening of "The Princess Pat," Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert's latest comic opera, which is being presented at the Park Square Theatre, Boston, were unanimous in the opinion that it is the best American comic opera that has been written in years. Sufficient endorsement, this, for any seeker of entertainment. Every number, and there are twenty of them in the score of this latest Herbert success wins enthusiasm. It is music that tells a story. Mr. Herbert's instrumentation is such that it carries the story along with it. This is a mastery over melody that few composers have been able to accomplish. Mr. Blossom, fully aware of these gifts of his collaborator, has supplied a book and lyrics that enables Mr. Herbert to go the full length of his wonderful imagination. The various characters involved in this story lead to unique expressions of musical rendition. It is a study in itself, and one can hear the opera time and time again with the knowledge that he will discover something new in the music on each occasion. The Victor Herbert Orchestra is under the direction of Gustave Salzer. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday, and all mail orders will be filled promptly.

PLYMOUTH

Next Monday begins the goodby week of May Irwin in "33 Washington St." at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, completing an engagement that has been one succession of merry performances, and theatregoers have been given the laugh of their lives by the wholesome, clean comedy provided by this artist. The plot of the play centers about the inability of Mrs. De Feyster, "33 Washington Square," society leader, to take her regular summer trip to Europe due to certain financial embarrassments. Miss Irwin is beyond all doubt a most remarkable comedienne. Early in the play she gives what might be called a song recital, singing a group of songs of typical Irish variety, and that means that they are pleasant invasions into the paths of happiness via the music route. She sings them as no other woman is capable, investing them with a wealth of joy.

The company surrounding her is of superior excellence. Matinees at this theatre are given on Thursday and Saturday, and for the convenience of all suburban patrons, they are assured that mail orders will be carefully filled.

MAJESTIC

"The Only Girl," for which Victor Herbert wrote some of his finest music, and its accompanying story supplied by Henry Blossom, which lives in memory as a jewel of melody and comedy will come back to the Majestic Theatre for a return engagement beginning Monday evening, May 1, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. This delightful musical comedy which is presented by Joe Weber, has been extolled by critics time and time again because it is more than musical farce. "The Only Girl," is the one product of musical comedy seen in recent years that can be really designated as "a musical comedy," without mangling the King's English. Summer prices will prevail, 50 cents to $1.50; evenings and $1.00 only for the best Orchestra seats at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

COLONIAL THEATRE, ANDOVER

The Birth of a Nation

When one sees D. W. Griffith's wonderful film spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," and learns from it the many facts and sidelights of American history that are not to be found in the school editions of history, the thought comes that the educational departments of the country are neglecting the real education of the growing children. It is a known fact that the histories studied by the children in the South give an entirely different version of the great struggle of 1861 than that which is given in the schools of the North. Then comes "The Birth of a Nation" and in clean, impressive motion pictures, gives the real story of this great struggle and the spectator, be he a grown-up or a child, realizes that in his studies of the Great Rebellion he has learned but a small part of the actual history. For instance, it was new knowledge to learn that after the states of the Confederacy had signed a peace, there were northern statesmen who wished and urged the President to treat the rebellious states as conquered provinces and to hang their leaders. This is but one of many things that are brought to light in "The Birth of a Nation" for the first time to millions of people who have always felt that they knew the better part of the real history of the Civil War.

The question arises in the minds of the many, "Why are so many facts kept from the students in the schools of the North; and why should the people of the South be given a different version than the people of the North?" Why shouldn't there be one history for the entire country and that history absolutely truthful, unvarnished to suit the prejudices and sympathies of either class?

Must it remain for the motion pictures to give the people of the world the real truth of history and other educational matters? It would seem so. And if it must, let there be more pictures produced like "The Birth of a Nation" which comes to the Colonial Theatre of this town for an engagement of three days, April 27, 28, 29.

YE WILBUR

It is scarcely necessary to go into details regarding the noted career of Mr. Mann, for his characteristic "broken German" dialect creations are world famous, having pleased the theatregoers of this country for almost a half century. As to the play, "The Bubble" it is from the pen of Edward Locke, author of "The Climax," "Case of Becky" and is not only claimed to be this author's Master work, but it is also the best play afforded Mr. Mann in years. In this new successful comedy-drama Mr. Mann has the role of Gustave Mueller, an irascible but lovable old delicatessen dealer. One evening a polished promoter of mining stock enters his home and convinces the old German that he can be worth untold wealth by purchasing stock in the Prophet mine. The old man invests his entire savings in this get-rich-quick scheme and the manner in which he mixes old pickles and frozen finance brings forth many side-splitting comedy situations. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday afternoon. The second week begins next Monday, May 1.

George has become much interested in playing soldier. At first he was content to march around merely with a stick or a gun; then, at his request, his mother made him a paper hat, to which later he added a plume picked up in the chicken yard. Then he must have a belt, and this naturally led him to ask his father to whittle him a sword. But one day he came from the pictures with another detail. "Mother," he asked, "got any old brushes I can have?" "What for?" "I've been looking at a picture of Napoleon—and he has scrubbing brushes on his shoulders." Picture Progress.

Boy Scout Notes

The regular weekly meeting of the boy scouts was held at headquarters in the Lower Town Hall, Saturday afternoon. At the present time, thirty-two boys have passed their tenderfoot tests. These boys are now starting on the second class examinations which include signalling, first aid work, tracking, using properly the knife and axe, building fires for cooking out-of-doors, and cooking simple meals without the ordinary cooking utensils, earning a dollar and putting it in the savings bank, and boxing the compass. Most of the boys are starting on first aid work and signalling. The headquarters will be open from 4 to 5.30 this Wednesday for those who have not yet passed tenderfoot examinations.

The schedule for the meetings has been made out as follows: Thursday evenings at 7.30 Troop I, Tuesday evenings at 7.30 Troop II, the leaders meeting at 7 o'clock on those evenings, Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock the Bugle and Drum Corp, Wednesday afternoons at 4 o'clock, meeting at headquarters for the studying of scoutcraft, while Saturday at 2 o'clock, the two troops will meet for hikes.

An Andover Boy

We all recall, as they lived long with us, the late Robert and James Callahan and their friends. They had one brother, Augustus, born here in 1815 just one hundred years back, who went to Maine after marrying Mary Messer of Methuen. He had learned the wool business at the old Marlards mill here in 1845. He first went to Yassalboro where he had a carding mill and later was overseer in Lewiston in a mill of the father of the late Senator Frye, also of old Andover stock. He was agent elsewhere for other concerns. He was a Free Mason.

He left among others a son, George Augustus Callahan, born here in 1839 in the Haywood house on High Street. He learned his trade here with Mr. Draper, boarding with his aunt, Mrs. Robert Callahan. He married Charlotte Turner of Auburn, Maine, and began a printing plant in Lewiston in 1862, and was on deck over forty years; he was a Mason, also a Baptist, Knight of Honor.

Mr. Callahan had a lively interest in his early home and his family history. He gave me valuable information as he also was a collector. He died in 1913, with his daughter, being an invalid for several years after a surgical operation. He was a highly esteemed citizen, very active there in Lewiston. He left his widow and three daughters at seventy-four.

This month I read in the Portland Argus of the death of the widow at seventy-six after a long illness in the home of a daughter who lived in Portland.

Andover training of the ordinary kind, public school, and a trade learned here, equipped him for a useful life of credit both to us and his family. As my young friend Baker across the street, says "He made good."

MODEL OF THEATRE OF ELIZABETHAN PERIOD

BY CHARLES H. FORBES

Andover's Model Theatre

The most interesting feature of the Shakespearean tercentenary exhibition now being held in the library of Phillips Academy, is a model of a typical Elizabethan theatre constructed by Charles H. Forbes, professor of Latin in the school. Professor Forbes has held in general to the specifications laid down in Al-bright's "Shakespearean Stage" and in Professor Thorndike's recently published "Shakespearean Theatre", using for the dimensions the scale of approximately five-eighths of an inch to a foot. The model, which is based largely upon the plans of the Fortune but follows no one theatre throughout, is octagonal in shape, with three sides left open so that the stage, gallery, and balconies are visible. Each side of the octagon is fifteen inches long and twenty-five inches high. The pit is, of course, open to the sky, but the balconies and the "Hut" are roofed with woodwork tinted to represent red tiling. The three balconies are, measured from the interior, respectively ten inches, seven and one-half inches, and five inches high. The stage, which is twenty-three inches deep with proscenium doors on each side at the rear, has the familiar truncated form projecting far into the pit, with a front of fourteen inches. Back of it is the inner stage, separated from the outer stage by a curtain. Above the inner stage is a fair-sized gallery, also with a curtain in front, with a window in the back. Above the outer stage, and covering it in part, are the "Heavens", painted blue, and supported by pillars fifteen inches in height; and over this at the top is the "Hut", from which apparently stage machinery was sometimes let down. In the rear of the inner stage Edward Brooks of Andover has painted a conventional tapestry hanging; and he has also painted the interior of the theatre to imitate the wood and plaster construction then so common, adding decorative designs in browns and yellows so that the color scheme is exceedingly attractive. The floor of the pit is covered with earth and strewn with rushes.

The stage has been set for Act III, Scene 2, of Hamlet, in which the play within the play is enacted. Pasteboard figures representing the various characters have been painted by another Andover artist, H. Winthrop Peirce, who is well acquainted with Elizabethan costume. The player king and queen are shown on the inner stage, giving the performance of The Murder of Gonzago; Gertrude, Ophelia, Hamlet, Polonius, and the others sit watching the performance, and the usual number of gallants are seated on the stage itself.

Professor Forbes' model is probably larger and more in detail than any in the United States. It is intended for permanent use in the English courses at Phillips Academy, but it will be publicly exhibited during the next month.

Don't Paint With Mud!

What is in paint is as important as how paint is put on. The best painter in the land cannot make worthless mixtures of crushed rock and ground earths stay put. Imitation paint lacks the clinching qualities and elasticity that paint made of

Last Saturday afternoon there was a song and piano recital in Davis Hall of pupils of Miss Bennett and Mr. Ashton. The Easter service was on Sunday evening. There was a short address by Rev. George H. Guttererson of Winchester and an organ recital by Mr. Ashton. Tomorrow afternoon the senior class is to entertain the faculty and senior class of Bradford Academy. Saturday afternoon, May 13, the meeting of the Boston Abbot Club will be held in Andover. Commencement day will be early this year, June 6. The baccalaureate sermon is to be given by Rev. An Old P.A. Boy and Teacher

The papers announce the recent death in Florida of Dr. William N. Fenn, for many years a prominent minister in Manchester and Portland. He graduated from Phillips in 1850, and after his return from Yale taught in the Academy a year, 1854-55. A host of familiar Andover names appear on the catalogues of those two periods with his. William G. Goldsmith, Francis G. Sanborn, Sam Locke Lamson, Geo. F. Baker, Henry Boynton, Charles C. Blunt, Francis Holt, William Marland, William N. Park, Joseph W. Poor, were in school with him. George H. Parker, John P. Taylor, Samuel H. Boutwell, John H. Chandler, William E. Clough, John W. Cochrane, John H. Flint, Brooks F. Holt, Abraham Marland, George H. Valpey were Phillips students when he was a teacher. Very few of these "boys" are left now—wonder if they remember Mr. Fenn as their schoolmate or teacher!

Have Bees Color Sense?

A bee is as fastidious as a woman in its selection of colors. Bees love flowers, not only for their honey but for their color. Roses are not white and pink, and violets purple merely for your pleasure. They have these attractive frocks, as well as their delicious perfumes, to attract the bees. The yellow dust of the flowers is the pollen. It is sometimes sent from flower to flower by the wind, but it is usually carried by the bees. Therefore, flowers have to wear their most pleasing colors to woo and win these messengers of life and love. This is not mere poetic fancy, for a number of able scientists have experimented at different times to find what colors bees prefer, and have placed their preferences in this order: Blue, green, orange, plain red, white and yellow. If blue is the bees' favorite color, why is it that there are so few blue flowers? Scientists answer that all blue flowers have descended from green ancestors. They have passed through stages of white or yellow and generally red, before becoming blue. Violets are white and violet, though yellow in their original color. For the same reason there are pink, white, red and yellow roses. They have all passed through the different stages of color development. It is commonly supposed that blue flowers are descended from white or yellow ancestors.

SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

Rain on Easter Day Did Not Interfere With Church Observances.
Large Congregations Heard Excellent Sermons and Music

Easter Sunday was observed with appropriate sermons and special music in the various churches, and the congregations were all large in spite of the rainy weather. Sunday school concerts were held at the South, Free and Christ churches at 4.00 p. m.

South Church

At the South church, before a large congregation, the choir rendered a special musical program under the direction of Frederic G. Moore, Organist and choirmaster. The choir was assisted by Linwood D. Scriven of Boston, Violinist. Mrs. F. G. Moore sang a soprano solo, "Heavenly Light" by Gounod, with violin obligato by Mr. Scriven, and the choir rendered the anthem "God Hath Appointed a Day", by Tours.

Rev. E. Victor Bigelow delivered an appropriate sermon, using as his text "Knowing that He which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also with Jesus."

At 4.00 o'clock in the afternoon the annual Easter concert of the Sunday school was held, a large number of children and parents attending. The program given under the direction of Mrs. Arthur Bassett, was unusually good, all of the children doing fine work. Miss Evans rendered a violin solo at the offertory.

Free Church

At the Free church on Sunday morning an excellent musical program was given by the Junior and Senior choirs under the direction of Edwin G. Booth, Organist. The anthems "Now is Christ Risen" with solo by Miss Alice Coutts, and "Christ Our Passover", by Tours with solo by Miss Mary Scott were sung by the senior choir, while "Ye Happy Bells of Easter" was excellently rendered by the Junior choir.

R3v. Frederick A. Wilson gave a fine Easter sermon, taking for his text: "If a man die, shall he live again?" Job 14: 14.

The annual Sunday school concert was held at 4.00 o'clock in the afternoon, being in charge of Mrs. John C. Angus. Miss Ethel Lawson of Danvers sang two soprano solos which were greatly enjoyed. The concert was largely attended.

West Church

At the West church on Sunday morning an appropriate musical service was carried out under the direction of Miss Pauline A. Meyer of Lawrence. The choir sang several anthems and Miss Meyer rendered the solo, "Angels, Roll the Rock Away", by Hawley.

Rev. Newman Matthews preached an excellent sermon on "The Beatific Vision."

Christ Church

At the Christ church on Sunday morning at the 10.30 a. m. service the full-vested choir of men and boys gave an excellent musical program under the direction of B. Frank Michelson, Choirmaster. The anthems rendered were "Christ Our Passover Is Sacrificed for us", by Tours; "Alleluia, Christ Is Risen", by Burdett, and "God Hath Appointed a Day", by Tours.

Rev. C. W. Henry delivered an appropriate Easter sermon on the text: "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord,"—Zachariah 4: 6.

Holy Communion services were held at 7.30, 9.00 o'clock and 12 o'clock with large congregations.

The annual Sunday school festival was held in the church on Sunday afternoon at 4.00 o'clock with Miss Ethel Humphreys as organist. The boy choir and the children sang several beautiful carols. Mite boxes with missionary offerings were brought to the chancel and received by the rector.

A pleasing feature was the reading of the honor list of children who had attended the services during Lent. Badges of gold and white were presented those who had attended every service, while blue and white were given to those who had been absent once.

The honor list:

Gold and white ribbons: Violet Cole, Jessie Smith, May Shaw, Christina Snyder, Nan Sellars, Annie McCoubrie, Grace French, Christina Perkins, Evelyn McKee, Martha Shaw, Dorothy Lovell, Isabella Smith, Thelma Lyle, Ruth Hilton, Isabelle Bodwell, Lydia Hilton, Nellie Irvine, Eleanor Flint, Mary Cole, Sarah McCoubrie, Helen Maffey, Mary Fraize, Leona French, Martha Buttrick, Rachel Boutwell, Beatrice Buxton, Ethel Manning, Frances Dalton, Dorothea Brown, Isabelle Hill and Matilda Goldstein.

The third degree was conferred by the ladies' degree staff, and the fourth degree by the regular officers. State deputy Everett W. Stone of Auburn inspected the Grange, and commended the ladies' degree staff also by the regular officers in the fourth degree. In his personal examination of each officer, he found them with ready answers. The fourteen tableaux presented during the third and fourth degrees under the direction of Mrs. Hubert Mayo were pronounced by the deputy as being perfect. An excellent harvest feast was served by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D'Arcy, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Huggins and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Merrick. There were one hundred and two Andover Grangers and fifty-five visitors from Methuen, North Andover, West Boxford and two Granges in New Hampshire represented.

Every one who is interested in helping a good cause is requested to come to the Grange Hall next Tuesday evening May 2, when the Andover Grangers will hold an "Educational Aid Fund" night. A paper will be read by Mrs. George M. Carter on the good this fund is doing. The entertainment although not fully known will consist of music, readings and dancing and will be interesting. The ladies of the Grange know full well that one can't live altogether on entertainments so they have provided practical things for sale at reasonable prices. Booths for six days of the week will be in evidence, and we will find "Monday" presided over by Mrs. Moar and Mrs. Merrick. Here you will find articles needed for Monday's work. Then Mrs. E. W. He Knew No Retreat

There is a story that Napoleon was once reviewing his troops when he chanced to see an unusually small drummer boy among them. He spoke to the little fellow.

"Do you belong to the army?" asked the general. "What do you do here?" "I'm a drummer, Sir," was the prompt answer.

Napoleon smiled. "Bring your drum here," he said. The boy did as he was told and Napoleon first bade him sound the "march," which is the signal sound of an hour before breaking up the camp. The boy did very well with the "march," then he beat the "march," the "advance," and the "charge," according as he was bid by the general.

Napoleon was pleased with the boy's skill and praised him. "Now, last of all, beat the 'retreat'!" he cried. The boy, who had been smiling and proud, now hung his head. "Excuse me, Sir," he stammered; "I never learned to sound that. Our regiment has never retreated."

Long afterwards Napoleon remembered the little drummer boy who could not beat a retreat.

Egg Laying Contest

The report for the twenty-first week of the first egg laying contest of the Essex County Agricultural School, Hathorne, and the Essex County Poultry Association follows:—

The table indicates the number of eggs laid in this contest for the week ending April 11, 1916, also (in the first column) the total number of eggs produced by the pen to date.

Each pen contains 10 regular birds and a reserve bird, (marked R but not included in total production.)

When the pen record shows a greater number of eggs than the total of the individual making up that pen, the explanation is that some eggs were laid outside the trap-nests and therefore could not be credited to the individual. In each case, however, the pen gets the credit for the full number of eggs laid. Pen, Owner, Address and Breed

BASE BALL

Punchard 4, Lawrence 4

The Punchard baseball nine played the Lawrence high school team on the local Playstead last Tuesday afternoon and after twelve innings of hard playing, the game was called with each team having four runs to its credit. The contest was full of excitement and many thrilling situations, and an enthusiastic crowd was on hand to urge the home team on to victory but a draw was the only verdict at the end of the festivities.

In the second inning, Lawrence scored the first run of the game, but in the third, Punchard came back strong and scored two runs and two more in the fourth. Lawrence scored two runs in the sixth inning, making the score 4-3 in Punchard's favor. This was the last of the scoring until the ninth when Higgins of the Lawrence team stole home and tied up the score. After the ninth inning neither team was able to cross the plate. Several times during the game, both sides had some excellent chances to score but lacked the necessary punch at the critical moment. In the last inning, Punchard had a fine chance to score but lost it when Gus Brown was caught napping on second with one down. Immediately after this a passed ball and an outfielder's muff occurred and would have resulted in a score had not the opportunity been lost just before. For Punchard, Lawson, Sellars, McNally and George Brown were the features, while for Lawrence, Higgins, Coyle, McDonald and Fleming were the star performers. The summary:

This afternoon Punchard playing the Johnson High School team of North Andover on the playstead at 3.15. Johnson High have not a very formidable line-up this year and the local team does not expect much trouble from the North Andover boys. Either Webster or McNally will do the twirling, with Captain Gus Brown on the receiving end. There are no games scheduled for next week as there is a recess of one week in the schools.

Punchard Won

The Punchard High School baseball team journeyed to Wakefield on last Friday afternoon and defeated the high school team of that town by the score of 13 to 10.

The local boys continued their good work with the stick and hammered the Wakefield pitcher's slants all over the lot.

Punchard started scoring in the first inning when they drove two runs across the plate. Wakefield tied the score in the second inning, but Punchard jumped into the lead in the next inning and was never headed.

Webster pitched the whole game for the Punchard nine, and the Wakefield team would not have scored more than four or five times had it not been for the erratic work of the umpire and an occasional error by the Punchard players. For Punchard, Captain Gus Brown, Webster, Bowman, and George Brown were the features, while for Lawrence, Higgins, Coyle, McDonald and Fleming were the star performers. The summary:

State and City Winners in Cross Seal Competition

Six states and twenty cities are announced today by the American Red Cross as winners of pennants and honors in the Second Annual Competition for selling the largest number of Red Cross Seals per capita during the sale last December. The total sale announced will reach 80,000,000 seals, bringing in a revenue for anti-tuberculosis work in the United States of $800,000.

In the competition between states, Rhode Island won first place in states with a population of up to 1,250,000, the total sale being 2.29 seals per inhabitant, while Connecticut wins second place with a sale of 2.07 per capita. In states with a population from 1,250,000 to 2,400,000, Minnesota wins first prize with a sale of 1.34 per capita, and Maryland second, with a sale of 0.72. In the most populous states, having a population of over 2,400,000, New York wins first place, with a sale of 1.8 per capita, and Wisconsin second, with a sale of 1.46.

For the purpose of competition, the cities and villages of the country were divided into ten classes, ranging in population from 300 to over 1,000,000. The highest per capita sale recorded, 29.04, goes to Hershey, Pa. The following table shows the winners in each of the ten classes:

Explaining Dandruff

Anybody who wants to know what dandruff is can memorize this little statement: "It is a disease of the sebaceous glands which open into the hair follicles and secrete an oily substance, and dandruff results when the glands become infected and commence to exude an inflammatory substance into the follicles to such an extent that it dries into flakes." Makes baldness seem unimportant.

Public School Notes

The teachers and pupils of the John Dove school provided a very unique and pleasing entertainment for the mothers connected with the school on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 26.

Invitations were written by the children, and the entertainment, which was made up largely from the daily work of the school, consisted of reading contests, writing, spelling, arithmetic, recitations, language games, dramatizing, geography, physical training exercises, folk dancing, and music.

For the reading contests judges were appointed from the guests present, and the following were declared winners in their respective grades:

Grade III, Miss Chase's room: Prentiss Glazier and Laura Collings; Miss Hobb's room: Helen Hackney, Dorothy Hill and Leslie Shattuck.
Grade IV, Miss Hannon's room: Margaret Manning, Raymond Schlapp and Eleanor Downs; Miss Hoyt's room: Stuart Henry and Marguerite MacDonald.

Grade V, Miss Simmons' room: Elizabeth Harrington, Seldon Billington and Malcolm Rhul; Miss Downes' room: Catherine Stewart, Jimmie Walker and Reginald Holt.

Prizes of red, white, and blue ribbons were presented.

At the close of the exercises the guests grouped themselves in the hall to watch the marching out of the children, always one of the pleasing features of the day's work in this school. With Miss Hoyt at the piano the children marched out in perfect time and perfect order.

The attendance of mothers was very gratifying, and all expressed themselves as having spent a very delightful afternoon.

A Victor Phonograph specially designed for school use has been purchased for the Stowe school from the proceeds of the entertainment, Princess Chrysanthemum, supplemented by funds saved from previous entertainments. The machine, together with a good list of records, was purchased from the local dealer, William A. Allen.

Are You Envious?

Envy is the weakness of small natures. It is the people with cramped souls who feel that whatever others get in the way of admiration robs them of their due. It is the hardest thing in the world to weed out envy. To get rid of it, outgrow it.

Jude's Wise Observation

Jude Johnson is now studying theology and making some very tiresome theological comments. "The Bible says if your right eye offends thee, pluck it out, but, I notice there are very few one-eyed people in this world," Jude said today, and then looked very wise.—Atchison Globe.

STATE AND NATION

MAY WITHDRAW TROOPS

Washington, April 27.—General instructions for the assistance of Major General Scott at his forthcoming conference with Carranza's war minister, General Obregon, were drafted by Secretary Baker after conferences with President Wilson and with Secretary Lansing.

Obregon is due at Eagle Pass, but as no definite word has been received from him as to the time and place of the meeting, the instructions will reach Scott in ample time.

The only official statement as to the nature of the instructions was the following, issued by Baker:

"The instructions are to discuss a basis for the most cordial and complete co-operation between the American and Mexican forces in the attainment of their common object."

While the immediate object of the conference is, as stated, a question of military dispositions to put an end to bandit operations along the border, there is no doubt that its result will have a strong influence upon the diplomatic negotiations between the two governments.

It is considered certain that Obregon will carry back to Mexico City on his return a definite impression that the American troops will remain in the positions to which General Funston now is shifting them, as a buffer between the disturbed area of northern Mexico and the border, until the success of the Carranza forces in pursuit of the bandits removes the danger of further raids on American towns.

It also is virtually certain that the intention of the American forces to police thoroughly all the territory in the immediate vicinity of their advanced base will be made clear.

While it is not known that the orders mention Francisco Villa, Scott may point out to Obregon that the most effective way to secure early withdrawal of the American forces from Mexico would be to lend all possible aid in the chase for the bandit. With his elimination by either American or Mexican troops, it is believed, the Washington government would agree to an immediate retirement of the expedition across the border.

A renewal of the hunt for the bandit by American troops now is in progress, both official reports from Funston and border advice disclosed. The cavalrymen, despite the worn condition of their mounts, are beating the mountains where Villa adherents have been assembling during the lull in the chase after the Parral incident. No information as to the whereabouts of Villa himself has been received.

Americans Warned of Danger

Torreon, Mex., April 27.—American Consul Coen, at Durango City, has advised all Americans to leave the city and is himself considering the advisability of going to the border.

M'CALL-WEEKS CONTEST

"Harmony" in Bay State Somewhat Displeased by the Primary

Boston, April 27.—As the result of the sweeping victory at the presidential primary of the unpledged forces, who elected their "Big Four" slate for delegates-at-large and their alternates by more than 15,000 over the Roosevelt group and also elected twenty-eight of the thirty-two district delegates, an aggressive, internal contest is now imminent between supporters of Governor McCall and Senator Weeks for control of the Massachusetts delegation.

McCall men and Weeks men went to the primary knowing that each is a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and aware that whichever obtained the larger vote would be hailed as the stronger candidate.

As the result of the primary, McCall led the ticket with 63,775 votes, while Weeks finished last with 58,568. Senator Lodge was second with 61,352 and former Senator Crane was third, with 59,185. The vote for the Roosevelt ticket was: Cushing, 46,265; Bird, 46,209; Gardner, 45,495; Washburn, 43,767.

The latest indications are that the German reply to the American note may not be delivered until next week.

Improvement Society Organized

The executive committee of the Ballardvale Village Improvement Society held a most successful meeting on Saturday evening at the home of the secretary, Mrs. William Shaw, and completed the organization of officers and committees as well as outlined the list of prizes for 1916.

A mass meeting in Bradlee Hall for the organization of the Children's Auxiliary will be held Wednesday evening, May 3 at 7.30. One feature of this meeting will be a stereopticon address by William Shaw. All children of Ballardvale under fourteen years of age are cordially invited.

The following list of prizes was adopted:

1. $8.00 in five prizes as follows: $3.00 $2.00 and three prizes of $1.00 each for the best improvement in front and back yards.

2. $4.00 in three prizes as follows: $2.00 and two prizes of $1.00 each for the most attractive display of hanging baskets or piazza and window boxes.

destruction, to William Clemens, Andover Street.

All the community has caught the spirit of the B.V.V.I.S., and many individual property owners are planning improvements. One decided improvement would be the painting of the bridge, which it is hoped will receive the favorable consideration of the Board of Public Works, as it is steadily deteriorating, through rust, for lack of paint.

ANDOVER CONFERENCE

The second topic was "What is the best method of financing our churches?" J. E. Varney of Lawrence opened the discussion. He gave the suggestion that if the men would put their shoulders to the wheel as the women do, the churches would be financed. No matter what the method of financing may be, Mr. Varney said, it is always better to have the pledges in hand at the beginning of the year.

The third topic, "Can the church do its whole duty to its young people through the Sunday School?" was introduced by Rev. J. L. Keedy of North Andover. He said that the vital problem of the church today is the religious education of the young people, to prepare them not only for taking their place in the life of the church, but in the general life of the community.

The committee on arrangements reported, and their recommendations were accepted, as follows: Moderator of next meeting, Hon. N. P. Frye of North Andover; alternate, Rev. E. C. Bartlett of Dracut; secretary and treasurer, Rev. A. H. Fuller of Ballardvale; statistical secretary, Rev. Sarah A. Dixon of Tewksbury. Place of fall meeting, the United church of Lawrence. Assessment, one cent per member for local expenses, plus the assessment of the State Association. Supper was served at 6 o'clock.

Evening Session

The topic of the evening was "Evangelistic Methods". Rev. C. H. Oliphant of Methuen spoke on professional evangelism, giving some of the reasonable objections to this method, and also some of the points in its favor. He said that from the standpoint of the psychologist, professional evangelism rests upon a false conception of the permanence of a religious resolve.

The second objection is on the score of the commercialism of professional evangelism. Professional evangelists, some of them, receive very large sums of money for doing the work that they have done on behalf of Christ and His kingdom; and a reasonable presumption is raised that some motives or influences are used that are not wholly defensible.

The third objection to professional evangelism is that it discounts the normal activities of the church. The fourth and greatest objection has relation to the evangelical mind. The evangelist goes to a city and makes statements to which judicious and discriminating persons cannot subscribe. He brings conceptions of the Bible and of Christian doctrine which are entirely out of date and objectionable from the standpoint of an enlightened mind; and his attitude toward liberal churches is so bitter that it makes it impossible for the federated activities to be carried on without serious friction. The evangelist, therefore, is in much the same position that a nation is that drops its bombs indiscriminately. It may kill a few belligerents, but it kills also women and children and innocent non-combatants.

On the other hand, Mr. Oliphant said, many things might be said with equal truth in favor of the professional evangelist. The first and most important is that he succeeds in winning the attention of those whose attention has not been won by the regular instrumentalities of Christian work.

Second, he succeeds not only in getting the attention of the unchurched, but in getting into service members of the churches who have hitherto been inactive.

Third, professional evangelism utilizes and subordinates to the highest ends that love of pagentry and sensationalism which is in all healthy and all unhealthy human nature.

"Pastoral Evangelism" was the subject assigned to Rev. Arthur Barber of Lawrence. He said that two of the most successful and productive evangelistic campaigns he has ever known, were of this pastoral nature. In a city of 100,000 or more, the pastors united in the work, and in a small town that had only one church, it was a campaign of personal evangelism.

Rev. Clarence W. Dunham of Boston upheld the principle of personal evangelism.

The next meeting will be held in October at the United church in Lawrence.
